Subject: Note to file - call with EMPLOYEE 32 [REDACTED]

- [REDACTED], [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] interviewed EMPLOYEE 32 this evening.
- [REDACTED] asked what happens if the institutional count is not performed or if the count is wrong. EMPLOYEE 32 said that it is accurate that if a count slip is not turned in or is false, and the count doesn't match the roster, the MCC must then do a bed book count. If a housing unit has a bad count, then they will say "do a re-count" with the bed book, ID cards, roster, etc., and go cell to cell to see if someone is missing or if there was a counting error.
- EMPLOYEE 32 doesn't believe the entire institution would have to do a full institution count; just the specific housing unit. However, if a unit fails a bed book count more than once, then they'd do a whole institution count.
- EMPLOYEE 32 has never been part of a whole institution bed book count. He has also never been part of an institution that didn't clear account. But EMPLOYEE 32 stated that if an institutional count did not clear, and a bed book count had not resolved the issue, the warden would be notified of what inmate was missing and alerted of a potential escape. The Warden would then notify regional director.
