The interview with [REDACTED] mother in Sweden was not the "slam dunk" they hoped it would be. They got some good information from her, including how often [REDACTED] spent time at Epstein's and that Maxwell knew [REDACTED] was a minor. However, they were hoping to get confirmation from the mother that [REDACTED] traveled from Florida to NYC, a trip which both [REDACTED] and her brother say happened, and she couldn't recall the trip taking place. They interviewed Epstein's pilot and he recognized [REDACTED] and was able to say that she did travel in the private jet. SDNY still claims they will be aggressive on Maxwell, however, the charge they are discussing a new charge, conspiracy to travel to engage in criminal sexual activity, a much lighter charge than the Enticement charge. The next steps will be a trip to California to re-interview [REDACTED], as well as an interview of [REDACTED] sister. And an interview of the housekeeper in Florida to determine if he has knowledge of [REDACTED] travel to NYC.

[REDACTED] lawyers are expected to submit a possible plea offer sometime next week. We have no idea what they plan on pitching.
