There would be $100's of dollars out on the counter when [REDACTED] was there. [REDACTED] would put the money in the drawer if the air condition guy would get called over.

[REDACTED] took messages when the phone rang. [REDACTED] is a perfectionist. If the messages weren't perfect, then she would crumble them up and throw them in the garbage.

[REDACTED] recalls being at EPSTEIN's house and letting [REDACTED] play with the wooden spoons in the kitchen. Some of the spoons got broken.

[REDACTED] recalls the laundry room was right outside in the guest house. Sometimes she would help FRANCINE, the housekeeper, fold towels while she was there.

[REDACTED] does not remember there being any torture chamber upstairs.

[REDACTED] recalls the house being upstairs but does not recall what street it was on.

[REDACTED] got the job through a friend. She recalls telling that friend that she needed a job in which she could bring her son with her.

MAXWELL called and hired [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] recalls MAXWELL taking [REDACTED] upstairs to her closet. MAXWELL told [REDACTED] that if any girl came there to not let them wear her clothes.

MAXWELL trained [REDACTED]

On one occasion there was a gas leak in the house so [REDACTED] knew to hit the button on the phone that said "New York". [REDACTED] called and someone answered and called the gas guy. MAXWELL told [REDACTED] about this "New York" button for direct access to New York.

[REDACTED] was always called when the air-conditioning guy or the housekeeper would be there. MAXWELL and EPSTEIN did not want things fixed while they were at the house.

MAXWELL told [REDACTED] that if the phone rings to take a message on the message pad. The pad had white and blue letters, said messages and had lines.

If the phone rang while [REDACTED] was there she would answer it.

[REDACTED] recalled that a girl called once and asked if EPSTEIN was in town. [REDACTED] said no. The girl was frantic and asked when he would be in town and [REDACTED] stated that she did not know.

Once EPSTEIN came to the house with lots of girls and bags. [REDACTED] said hello and then left.

Girls and important people would call. She recalls a female voice asking when is he coming back. This one call stuck out to [REDACTED] [REDACTED] never made calls to other people.

[REDACTED] met a chef once.

She met FRANCINE the house keeper and the air-conditioning guy.

Agent Note: At this point in the interview AUSA [REDACTED] shared her screen to show [REDACTED] a portion of the message pads (#2) see attached.

[REDACTED] notices that to the left she recognizes "Nicole Hesse" on the bottom. [REDACTED] states the context of the messages did not mean anything to her back then but she does recognize her handwriting and signature. [REDACTED] states "that's my signature for sure". [REDACTED] states that she just wrote whatever he said and does not know what the message was about. [REDACTED] does recognize her handwriting.

[REDACTED] states that she met MAXWELL in persons about 2 times. The first time was the "closet incident". The second time was a random time that MAXWELL came home when [REDACTED] was there.

[REDACTED] only spoke with MAXWELL about 2 times.

[REDACTED] felt that MAXWELL and EPSTEIN were obviously boyfriend and girlfriend. They had a weird relationship because MAXWELL had mentioned not letting girls wear her clothes.

FRANCINE tells [REDACTED] that EPSTEIN is really healthy and he doesn't do drugs or drink. [REDACTED] thought maybe EPSTEIN was a good guy.
