Post: Falkvinge: Three strong reasons child porn must be re-legalized in the coming decade.

Post: Girl steps in front of man's car. He grabs her arm and lectures her about traffic safety. Result? He is now a convicted sex offender.

Comment: The message is clear here: leave those kids alone lest you feel the wrath of the law. I feel like we are taking 1 step forward and 2 steps back. On the one hand we wish to protect the children from the grimy hands of paedophiles/ephebophiles and on the other hand the law (as interpret by the lowly magistrate judge) inform those with good intent to stay clear of the same children we wish to nurture into good citizens. Do we really want to head down this path?

Comment: Out of curiosity do you or anyone know which other American states - apart from New Hampshire as stated by the author - still entertain these laws that allow 13 year old to marry, etc.

Comment: Great, thanks unitmike. A quick browse for the U.S. shows that for Ohio and New Hampshire, the age of consent is 13 years, whereas for Iowa and West Virginia it may be as low as 12 years. I may be wrong in my interpretation of the different conditions.

Post: Child refugees 'sexually abused by Italian men' after being picked up while sleeping homeless in parks: Charities warn that countless child asylum seekers are being abused and exploited

Comment: " 'Ermias Haile, a 16-year-old from Eritrea, has been sleeping on a building site with his friends since they arrived on the island after making the treacherous voyage from Libya. Ermias and friends told Sky News an Italian had sexually abused them after buying them drinks and offering them shelter. 'He finds us in a place like this [park] and he invite us to a bar and he let us drink beer and then he take us to his home and there he give us beer," he said. "We start drinking and then he start touching us on our body. After we leave the house, he calls us and he gives us money.'

Smack of pedophilia so what are the Italian authorities doing about this?

Edit: I stand corrected, wrong term and the age of consent is 14"
