The problem is that the cable modem sits on the opposite side of the kitchen from the bedroom; those big metal boxes (refrigerator, dishwasher, pipes, etc) block radio signals.

TWC wouldn't have a workable solution (adding a second modem would be catastrophic in a space that small), but I could add two Apple AirPort Extremes instead.

Wireless routers can't relay across vendors, so I'll need to turn off the wireless radios on the modem, attach the first BaseStation to the modem and add a second by the printer to relay the signal into the bedroom.

We have two extras in the basement of 71st already. I'd just need to swing by and pick them up on my way over.

I'm available 10AM - 4PM tomorrow, Saturday and Monday.

hi Lesley

is it possible to install a second router in the bedroom? the signals from the living room are weak and it would be a great help/

thanks

Nili
